Informed by Jeff Kendricks, Program Manager at MCVets, that Mr. Johnson died at Johns Hopkins around 3am this morning. Call was then passed to Kelly Staten, veteran's case manager, who stated that veteran was vomiting on Tuesday, and spent most of the night at the BTVA, where several tests were run. According to the veteran, he was told that something was probably wrong with his kidneys, liver, and the arteries in his leg, and that they were going to run more tests.

He was discharged yesterday morning, and spent most of the day on bed rest at Mcvets. Last night, around 10 pm, he threw up blood on several people, and then passed out. An ambulance transported him to Johns Hopkins. At 3 am, Johns Hopkins called Mcvets, saying that he had expired, and was asking for the Next of Kin. Because he is in the VA Grant-Per-Diem Program, HCHV Coordinator Pat Lane was notified.
